SILENT ON PROPOSALS

Refrain From Expressing Any Opinior as to Acceptability of Latest Terms Submitted By Von Bernstorff.

Washington, Feb. 5.—President Wilson and Secretary Lansing will not be gin discussion of Germany's latest answer in the Lusitania negotiations be fore Monday. It is said the president already has the proposal from Berlin refore him, and want to go over it arefully before he begins conferences with the secretary of state. It was pointed out that the situation was not one which called for haste.

Meanwhile Secretary Lansing reiter ared the situation is unchanged. The state department does not consider that the general situation surrounding that the general situation surrounding the negotiations which still are described as confidential and informal, is any more grave than it has been. Administration officials carefully retrain from expressing any opinion of the acceptability or non-acceptability of the newest proposal. They pointed out that it could not be said there was a deadlock, because negotiations still were under way.

Consider New Proposals.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The Lusitania case again today was in the forethought of the international problems occupying the serious consideration of the Washington government.

President Wilson and Secretary Lansing carefully went over a new proposal presented last night by Count Von Bernstorff, German ambassador. Until they have decided there will be no change in the virtual deadlock to which negotiations came weeks ago in connection with these facts is lessening. Most of the afternoon papers do not discuss the situation papers do not discuss. The Krenz Zeitung, however, and the situation papers do not discuss the same the ferin main base of the case gave way as foreign minister of France."

Providence, R. I., Feb. 5 .- The case

Providence, R. I., Feb. 5.—The case of Mts. Elizabeth F. Mohr, Cecil Brown and Henry H. Spellman, charged with the gurder of Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, the woman's husband, was given to the jury at 10:45 o'clock today.

Judge Stearns, in charging the jury, decleared it was their duty if they concluded the stated have proved its case, to say "guilty," whatever the consequences.

"The law recognizes no color, no creed," the court said, "pays no jregard to the fact that one defendant is a woman and two are colored men. They are three citizens on trial and I charge you not to allow any prejudice or feeling excepting an honest desire to do impartial justice, to enter your minds.

"The law in regard to principals in a crime," the court explained, "is this." Where any persons are present, aiding and abetting in the actual commission of a crime—in this case it is murder—they are equally guilty with those who actually commit the crime. Mrs. Mohr has been indicted as an accessory before the facts. If you find she hired, aided, procured or assisted one or the other of the defendants, she is guilty."

No marks of violence were found on the body. The corner is conducting an investigation.

It was learned that the woman last evening sought permission to sleep in the basement of a nearby dry goods store and she impressed the janitor, to whom she made the request, as being slightly demented.

She had been employed as clerk in a paint and oil store, but had not worked since November. The company regularly remitted her check.

"All three defendants are indicted together, but you will bring three indictments. The verdicts will be individual, as though there had been three separate trials."

The court asserted that under the law an accessory cannot be convicted unless one or both the principals be found guilty.

Discussing the testimony of George Healis, Dr. Mohr's chauffeur, who turned state's evidence, the court said the reliance to be placed on his story rested with the jurors.

"Healis is a puzzling figure in this case," said the judge. It's a fair question how much of his statement is true and how much is false."

The court said no confession was made by Mrs. Mohr. But that according to the state she had made threats against her husband.

Inasmuch as confessions are only to be talten as against the persons making them, it was also pointed out that the alleged confessions of Brown and Spellman were not to be considered as against Mrs. Mohr.

Stock Breeders' association was opened this week. Country boys have taken up the idea to a much greater extent than ever expected by those in charge of the work. It was at first figured that fifteen would be a good number if this many could be accured, but at the present time the entry list doubles that first looked for, and possibilities are that half as many more boys will enter during the course of the next week.

The boys have been supplied with uniform record sheets and are to keep their own figures on the cost of production, etc. During the week of the Janesville fair, August 15, 16, 17 and 18, the contest will be brought to a close and suitable awards made to the boys who have raised the best calves. It is expected that Hugh Van Pelt are always and judge of dairy cattle breeds, will pass on the stock of the young exhibitors of the county. contest of its kind in the state, and the first of its type in the United States.

"Until a calf is six months or more of age it is of no value from a dairy viewpoint. The breeders' association and the boys together are striving to the point of determining just what it costs to raise fine dairy herds. Their purpose is good as can be seen by the interest already taken in the venture by the Federal Bureau of Animal Husbandry. The government is watching the work of the Rock county boys and thus far has offered some valuable advice. We are to send them our records later for the benefit of dairy cattle breeders of the country.

Friday's Market.
Chicago, Feb. 5.—A general advance of 10@15c in hog values yesterday carried the top and average within 5c of high day of year. Best sold at $3.05, with prospects of more advance:
Dwindling supplies of swine at eastern markets and largest shipments from Chicago in about four years were strengthening factors in the trade.

Armour, Swift and other big firms gave the market better support, their droves costing $7.80@7.95, averaging 212@230 lbs. Canadian packers bought lightweights as high as $8.

Hog Average Higher.

Average price of bogs at Chicago was $7.87, against $7.74 Thursday, $7.82 a week ago, $7.06 a year ago and $8.66 two years ago.

Cattle Prices Higher.

Yesterday's cattle trade slow at Thursday's finish. Beef steers are still 20@25c low time last week. Butcher stock, 25@40c above a week ago, and calves largely 50c higher. Quotations: Choice to fancy steers. $8.75@ 9.65

GET CONTRACTS AT BELOIT FOR OATMAN CONDENSORY; LOCAL FACTORIES BENEFIT

In anticipation of the location of the Oatman Condensory company at Beloit some weeks ago, the Beloit Business Men's association made contracts with farmers for 46,500 pounds of milk for that concern daily, according to the Beloit Daily News. President Aiva Snider of the Beloit Business Men's association announces that the Oatman company had decided not to come to Beloit, so that he has contracted with local milk companies of Beloit to take over the contracts beginning about April 1st.

The Oatman company will be remembered as the condensing plant which at one time favored Janesville as a location but later decided not to operate in any Wisconsin city for the present.

T. Stallings, of the Boston Nationals has just closed a five year contract with that club at an annual salary reported to be $20,000. Just where retrenchment and economy come in is not apparent unless the magnates plant to require the average big league player to pay for the privilege of playing on the team.

Ardent golf and tennis enthusiasts have started a controversy as to which of the two sports is the more beneficial from the standpoint of physical improvement and recreative pleasure. Several years of association with the followers of the court and course games leads to the belief that the confroversy will be continued unto the third and fourth generations.

leges to the contrary notwithstanding. We are a nation of freemen and not a nation of subjects, and there is no such things as a hyphenated American. Every citizen is an American, or he is not.

There is such a thing as a national There is such a thing as a national conscinece and its strongest characteristic is loyalty. The nations of the old world are at war today because the voice of conscience was stultified. There is nothing right about it, and but very little, if any, principle involved.

The toll of human life and of wholesnie suffering, such as the world has nover known, is the penalty which the nations are paying for not heeding the still small voice, and it is a frightful penalty.

The trouble with many of us is that we work our conscience overtime. Ship in when he work our conscience overtime. Ship in song of most everybody else is wrong, and so we undertake a contract of reform which is altogether too large for hu—

They fall to recognize the fact that the individual conscience must settle the individual conscience must settle for itself all questions of expediency as well as questions of right and wrong.

It is possible for a man to be so pure, in his own estimation, that he imagines that he has reached the pinnacle of perfection, and yet be so weak that the neighbors, and his close associates, regard him with distrust. A loud profession and a consistent life rarely go together, and advertised honesty usually bears watching.

Mr. Riley was right when he portrayed conscience as always on the job after dark. There is something about the shadow of night that quickens all our mental faculties. If at all sensitive, and blessed with a good imagination, we can enjoy all the diseases to which the human flesh is heir, between the hour of midnight and daylight.

We abuse our stomachs and di-gestive organs with a suppor that would stall an ostrich, and then go to bed and count our pulse-beats and fight off an attack of heart disease, or pain in the region of the appendix, which we are sure will end fatally be-

The conscience is equally active. during the still watches of the night. The mean things, which we may have said or done, during the day, have a faculty of coming back to us like a nightmare, and between our digestion and conscience, we are sometimes on he verge of nervous collapse.

Science attempted, not long ago, to secure the picture of a soul as it made its final flight from the earthly tenement to the life beyond, but the effort was a failure. The conscience is equally difficult to locate. The latter is the faculty through which the divine constantly whisners. "Do divine constantly whispers, "Do right." And unless we stiffe the voice it is always audible.

Mr. Riley knew what he was talking about when he wrote this homely little tribute to the conscience. His knowledge was based on experience, a knowledge was based on experience, a knowledge so common that it finds an echo in every heart.

young men, comprising the party, was a classmate and a friend of one of the members of the cast of a show troupe that is playing in a Janesville theatre.

Of course, the young man believed that his former friendship would stand him in good stead and with his companions gazed with envious eyes apont the photograph posters of the "stage doll" that were exhibited in front of the theatre. The first night they were all there—and in the second row. The young lady came prancing out in a brightly hued postume that was abbreviated enough to meet the lustant approval of those gathered upon the danding choius with immense and pronounced satisfaction. There were whispers exchanged between the young men and more smiles.

Whether the young lady on the stage was smiling in an enraptured mainner at the audience as a whole, or at the second row, is not known but evidently those in the second row is not known but evidently those in the second row is not known but evidently those in the second row is not known but evidently those in the second row is not known but evidently those in the second row.

After the "once-over" the young men selected their erstiffing partners for a proposed party after the attraction was completed. So the young men lined-up, with pleasant dreams of a good time at the stage door. After a long and impatient walt, the "stage dools" finally appeared. There was an exchange of greetings and introductions and then the leader of the Janesville "Beau Brummels," ventured a little supper and a joy ride."

Predicts Election Issue.

Predicts Election Issue.

In point of grasping the real situation, the Democratic state convention that met here last Tuenday was far more at agreement with public feeling than the Republican convention that met at Madison a week ago. The Democrats met the issue with their heads erect and eyes to the front, and my old friend and compatriot, Mr. Win. F. Woife of La Crosse did himself great credit by a frank and conageous handling of every important topic. The only thing I should question was that he gave the tariff a prominence, which in the light of Mr. Wilson's conversion to a tariff commission is a harmless way to stde-track the whole subject and spike the Republican guns, as well. The Madison convention was a distinct disappointment. This is no time to attempt success upon criticism of the government. The men who drew the Madison platform lost an opportunity to be particly and londed in a particly was and londed in a particly was pointment. This is no time to attempt success upon criticism of the government. The men who drew the Madison platform lost an opportunity to be patriots and landed in an entirely hopeless and ineffective slough of negation. They would do well to learn some lessons from the mistakes of the Horatio Seymour Democrats of the sixtles. Gov. Philipp is sound and enthusiastic in his Americanism, and the sooner he realizes that he must make that fact prominent and clear the better for his standing as a candidate and a patriot. Nobody can successfully dodge the vital issues this year. "Are you for the government and the principles of American freedom, or are you, a skulker, or a man who puts his Americansism behind a hyphen?" That's all there is to the coming election.

Note on Railroad Rates.

It is always interesting to see what other people are about and I picked up some information in St. Louis the other day about railway rates that is as striking as it is novel to us who live away from such opportunities. Illinois has a state 2 cent passenger fare law, as has Wisconsin. The interstate rate is 2½ cents, so by paying a 6 cent street car fare across the bridge a St. Louis man who wants to go to Chicago can save about $1.40 by buying his ticket on the east side of the river. Similar conditions exist at Marinette, La Crosse and other border-line cities in Wisconsin. It is estimated that 52,000 St. Louis people availed themselves of this opportunity, last year to save money at the ex-

Passenger.

W. F. Whitney, an attorney at Wenatchee, Wash, formerly of Whitewater, a brother of Mrs. B. F. Cary, Forest Park Eoulevard, and a cousin of Judge H. L. Maxfield, narrowly escaped death in the snow slide a week ago at Corea, Wash., in which a Great Northern train was swept from the track with the loss of eight lives. The Seattle Post Intelligencer gives the following account of Whitney's experience:

W. F. Whitney, a Wenatchee lawyer, who survived the Cascade avalanche, probably owes his life to an intuition.

Something—Mr. Whitney doesn't know just what—impelled him to rise and dress when the engine became stalled. He hurried out of the sieeper and saw the engine covered with snow. A V-shaped valley formed by converging ridges, he noticed, pointed directly at the train. His "hunch" that something was wrong became a certainty. Passenger.

rectly at the train. His "hunch" that something was wrong became a certainty.

He made his way to the diner planning on eating his breakfast as soon as possible preparatory to taking his station in the observation car. While in the midst of the meal he again felt the presentiment stronger than ever this time, so he left the breakfast unfinished and started back to the rear of the train, paying the conductor on the way. "The hunch was too strong to ignore." he said. "I felt compelled to get out of there and while not giving my reasons I told two men who were seated at an adjoining table that they had better come out to the observation car with me. One of them, a red-haired man, laughted and said he would see me later. He didn't, but I saw him—dead with his neck broken. I helped pull him out of the wreck. His companion, a short dark haired man, was not found.

"I had no sooner reached the platform on the last car, when I heard the roar of the avalanche and saw it half way down the hill to the train. It looked as if the observation car would go also, and I shouted to two men who were with me to jump and run for the snow sheds. two lundred invitations had been is sued and about one hundred couples were present.

The young ladies were assisted in receiving their guests by their mothers, Mrs. H. W. Brown and Mrs. George W. Breses, and programs were given out by the three Bailey girls. The dance hall was trimmed with St. Valentine decorations and proved most beautiful. Ropes of red and white covered the celling, from which were hung red hearts, in all sizes. A huge heart hung from in front of the orchestra and the musicians were surrounded with palms and decorations banked against the stand. Eight mahogany floor lamps, with different colored shades, casting forth a subdued light, was one of the novel schemes used to beautify the hall. George Hatch's orchestra furnished the inspiration for the dancers from nine until one o'clock. Punch and wafers were served during the evening.

The guests were composed of the younger set of the city and the event was pronounced a social success. pagne Bolles.

The gardens of beauty were ransacked and looted when the Champagne Belles opened the present successful senson. They carry with them a wonderful beauty chorus of singing and dancing nymphs that are as good as any and better than many carried today in the highest class musical comedy successes of the sonson. The scenic environment is beautiful, as the first act is laid in sunny Japan with its rich oriental setting, and the second at the main entrance of the T. P. Bayrum circus. The wardrobe is elaborate, and makes a rich background for this wonderful array of feminine loveliss wonderful array of feminine loveliss. his wonderful array of feminine love-

Geo. Atkinson, who has been featured as a ballad singer with every large minstrel show en tour in past seasons, has this season been repeating his former successes with his latest songs in the straight role with the Champagne Burlesquers. Burlesque is a long ways from minstrelay but versatile George is as much at home with the merry maidens even in their bare foot numbers as he was with the tamberines and burnt cork. They will be at the Myers tonight.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

David W. Griffith's most extraordinary achievement with his new photospectacle "The Birth of a Nation," coming to the Myers Theatre, is that of making history live. He has touched the high peaks of American history—the introduction of slavery, the war of secession, the surrender of Appomatox, the death of Lincoin, the miseries of reconstruction and the restoration of the south-to its own. These things, it would have seemed a year ago, were beyond the motion picture camera. The master producer had the faith of an enthusiast. Within 12,000 feet of celiuloid film he has successfully combined a thrilling, plausible and dignified presentment of national upgrowth with a real and human love story based on Thomas Dixon's book-romance, "The Clansman." As it appears to the newspaper and magazine critics, Mr. Griffith has not only surpassed the art of the "Indoor" theatre, but he has developed a new art-form far superior to the old-style history or historical novel. The best characterization of it so far is that of a very eminent public man who has called it "history by lightning."

man who has called it "history by lightning."

Mr. Griffith employed 18,000 poople in taking these historical pictures. The battle scenes were actual duplicates of several of the civil war conflicts, and so were the facelmilies of important events. We see Lincoin among his counsellors issuing the call for volunteers, Grant and Lee shaking hands at Appomatox, the shot that John Wilkes Booth fired, the Freedman's Bureau, the carpetbaggers' excesses, and the famous rides of the ku Klux. The realism is almost uncanny. Often the old war shouts are that it is only a picture. It is hard to keep one's feet from daneing to the pictures are so skillfully managed that often the applause is practically continuous for half to three quarters of an hour.

"Cabaria" and Quo Vadis" marked great steps forward in the screen drama. "The Birth of a Nation" points a still more wonderful development, the old dramatic form having been thrown away and the epic or nistorical form substituted. The old reproach against the "ien-cent movie" is forever removed.

It is a curious sight now in New York in see dozens of verenine of a proceeding policy of a procedure of the picture and in the applause is practically continuous for half to three quarters of an hour.

The labor involved in this newest sort of picture making is enormous. There are 5,000 separate and individ-ually posed scenes involving about 20,000 interesting details. The scenes of "The Coward" are laid in the Valley of Virginia in 1861. The story is that of a prideful father, a type like Corlololanus or Spartacus, and a weak, timid son of the Hamlet-like type. Needless to say, Mr. Keenan appears in the role of the arrogent and domineering father, the wonderfully sincere young actor, Charles Ray, as the son, Gertrude Claire as the mother and Margaret Gibson as the boy's sweetheart. Other characters include the Confederate general, played by Charles K. French, and a couple of old negro servants.

Remarkable for consistent heauty of freatment and an exceptionally strong characterization of Mignon Anderson.
"Milestones of Life" more forcibly and truthfully portrays the bitter tyrrany of wifely affection than any screen drama of the kind ever shown. The role of an exacting wife, no matter how truly fond she may be, is not one to enlist sympathy, especially when she offers tears and reproaches instead of the charm of intelligent companionship of her husband. The part becomes all the more difficult that she had no real cause for suspicion, and that she magnifies an episode of childhood, when she and her husband were tiny sweethearts logether and he displayed a varieties.

Marinette, Feb. 5.—After sleeping continuously for over a week, August Beauchamp, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. August Beauchamp, died yesterday. The strange malady from which the lad suffered still remained a mystery to the medical profession. Every effort to arouse him from his long slumber was without avail. He grew weaker from day to day owing to inability to administer solid food.

While The Passenger Was Arguing With The Ticket Agent About The Time of Leaving, The Train

Fortunes have been lost by delaying the moment of action. Procrastination has robbed all of us of many things we might have had and enjoyed if we had but acted.

There are a lot of folks in this town who have heard of our remarkable ALMANAC AND ENCYCLOPEDIA and expect to own a copy. But they think that any time will do — that we will always have a copy for them. But will we? Already the pile is getting low. We have telegraphed to the publishers for an additional supply only to be advised that the number printed for 1916 have all been disposed of.

Another case of "standing room only", as the theatres put it. SOMEONE IS GOING TO BE DISHED OUT OF THE COPY THEY EXPECTED TO GET. And that someone is going to be he who waits just a little too long. On the same principle of a starting train or boat, the one who delays until the bell strikes generally get left.

"Early Bird" is always getting the juicy things because he is ahead of the other fellow. And, this is but another instance where Early Bird wins out by getting the most accurate—most authentic—ALMANAC AND ENCYCLOPEDIA of the year.

)For scope of subjects - for reliable information upon every topic, subject or matters of information there has never before been offered a book the equal of this one.

Every one who has a copy is amazed at the wide range it covers. They marvel that such a wealth of knowledge could ever be gathered together and yet so condensed as to contain the full gist of the subject—not the slightest sacrifice made nor words used that would in any way cloud the information.

Already is the ALMANAC AND ENCYCLOPEDIA settling arguments. Already is it imparting information to its owners upon questions—features—places—cities—events—historical spots they have heard of but never known the real "inside facts" about before.

You, too, have still time to obtain this wonderful

The problem of properly housing working girls and women forced to live in undestrable tenements she has reduced to an exact science and has gotten big results. After four years' volunteer training and experience in managing certain model tenement buildings in London, Miss Geary had from an Amrican woman of the Model Tenement City and Suburban Homes company in New York and decided to come to America. It took her some time to convince the company that a woman could take charge of that kind of work. 'You're sure?' "But of a certainty, my old one!" "A thousand thanks."

Jumping down, the adventurer cranked the motor, sprang back to his seat, and was off like a hunted hare. And when, more than an hour later he brought his panting car to a pause in a quiet and empty back street of pared. In an instant Lanyard had ten the Auteuil quarter, after a course that yards' lead. Lanyard had his cab to dispose of and not a few other essential details to arrange before he could take definite steps toward the reincarnation of the Lone Wolf.

Picking a most circumspect route across the river-via the Pont Mirabeau-to the all-night telegraphic bureau in the Rue de Grenelle, he dispatched a cryptic message to the minister of war, then with the same pains to avoid notice made back toward the Rue des Acacias. Lanyard himself might have been unaware of it had he not caught, out of the corner of his eye, a flash of fire pent's tongue, and heard the crash of the window behind him falling inward, shattered.

That the shot had no immediate successor was due almost wholly to Lanvard's instant and instinctive action. Even before the clash of broken

He had no choice but to fly westyard.

He cut an arc round the sexpartite nark of the Rond Point that lest no inch of advantage, and straightened out up the Avenues des Champs-Elysees for the Place de l'Etoile, shooting madly in and out through the tide of more leisurely traffic. And ever the motor of the touring car purred conentedly just at his elbow.

If there were police about, Lanyard saw nothing of them-not that he would have dreamed of stopping or ' less than an immovable barrier.

But as the minutes sped it became apparent that there was to be no renewed attempt upon his life for the time being. The pursuers could afford to wait. And it came then to Lanyard that he drove no more alone. Death house. rode with him, his passenger.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Gazette, Feb. 5, cidentally walked into an opening 1875.—The common council meet tonight to take some action regarding the building of a school house on the west side of the river.

The barometer expects a change in the weather soon.

Trade has been lively today and so has the wind.

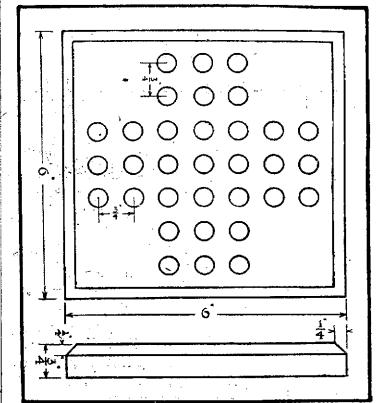

Last evening about seven o'clock as Miss Carrie Groat, an employe of the cotton factory, was crossing the river on the ice above the dam, she ac-

A Game Board

Take an ordinary piece of %-inch board—pine, whitewood or any other kind which you can find in the cel-lar. Cut it and plane it to exactly 6 inches square. Bore the holes as shown in the diagram above. Be sure to mark off equal spaces for the centers of these holes so that when you place your auger bit to bore each time it will go in on the same line. Bevel the edges with a plane as shown in the drawing and sandpaper and stain or sheliac.

This game board has two uses: It may be used by two players for the old-fashioned game of "Fox and Geese," using one big marble for the fox and several small ones for the geese, or it may be used by one player for the solving of the "cross-puzzle." The puzzle is a good, hard, brainy one and it may take a bright boy an hour or two to work it out. There are 32 holes. Fill all of them with marbles except the middle one. Commence jumping the marbles, taking off every marble which is jumped from moving backward or forward, but never kitty-cornered. To solve this puzzle only one marble must remain at the end of the game and that one must be in the center hole, which was vacant at the begin-ning. The best marbles for this game are the ones the boys call "Migs." A %-inch bit will make the best holes. Do not have the holes too small, otherwise the marbles will roll and mix up the game. [Protected by The Adams Newspaper Service]

An Attractive Bungalow No. 165

Illustrated here is one of the most popular designs of John Henry Newson Co.'s Home of Character. It has been built, to our knowledge, by one contractor over 30 times, and has been sold each time before completion.

This plan combines the bungalow style appearance with comforts usually secured only in a larger size house, as it retains all the important features of a well appointed home.

You will notice that the reception hall, living room and dining room open nicely into each other. Still there is plenty of wall space for furniture, and a large open fireplace in front of the living room as an especially attractive feature. The kitchen is also of ample size, is fully equipped, well lighted and ventilated, having a separate cold room provided for refrigerator.

There is a grade entry to basement, and also a closet for coats in the entry hall.

The second floor of this design has three good bedrooms and bath. We have placed at the end of the ball a linen closet, and you will notice from this illustration that there is a very attractive balcony off the main bedroom, extending over the front porch.

No. 165 has been built with hardwood floors, hardwood trim on the first floor, Georgia pine trim in the bedrooms, complete hot air heating plant, complete plumbing fixture, for $2300. Under more favorable conditions it can be built for $2000, and in no case should the cost exceed $2500.

As in almost all our designs, the basement extends under the main body of the house. In this instance it is 24x26 feet in size

Our price for plans on this house are especially reasonable, $10.00, or with specifications $2.50 additional. If you wish to see the same floor plan with different elevations, you will find this in our Homes of Character book, under Nos. 164, 167, 169, 223 and 232. Further information without charge can be secured in reference to this home by writing to "John Henry Newson, Homes of Character Dept., The Gazette."

DON'T OVERLOOK "CONCEAL-O" OUTLETS

Portable gas appliances are an every day

"Conceal-O" outlets in walls, baseboards or floor, furnish a means of safe, quick and in: conspicuous connection. Tubing connected to "Conceal-O" outlets is not in the way and is not noticeable like tubing coming from the wall or

"Conceal-O" outlets add little to the original cost and much to convenience. They can be installed in old houses, too. Have us give you an estimate.
